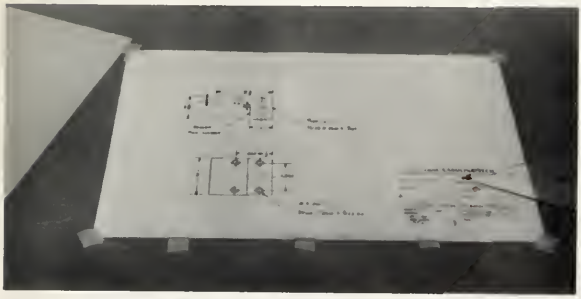
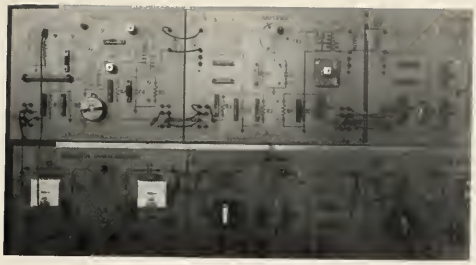
The purpose of the Veterinary Medical Technology curriculum is to provide training for young men and women who are interested in the field of Vet. Medicine. The ultimate goal of the curriculum is to produce the technician to fill the many job slots which formerly were filled with people who received their training in the human field or those who were able to take on-the-job training.

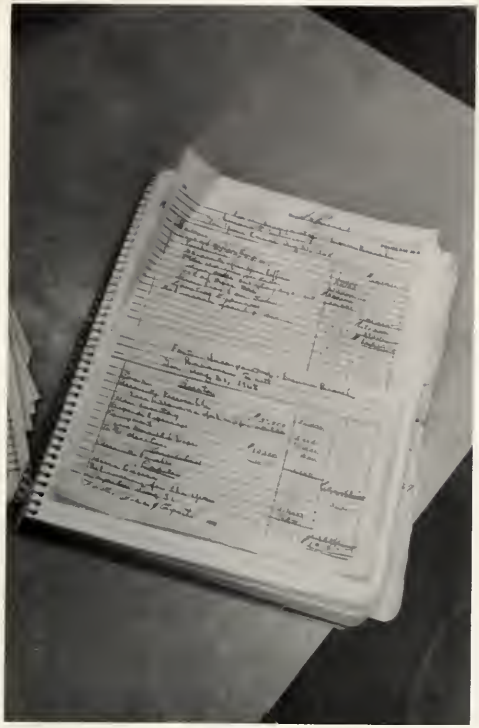
Some of the objectives of the curriculum are to develop knowledge in the areas of record keeping and reception, restraint of animals for examination, proficiency in certain laboratory tests and to understand the importance of good public relations.

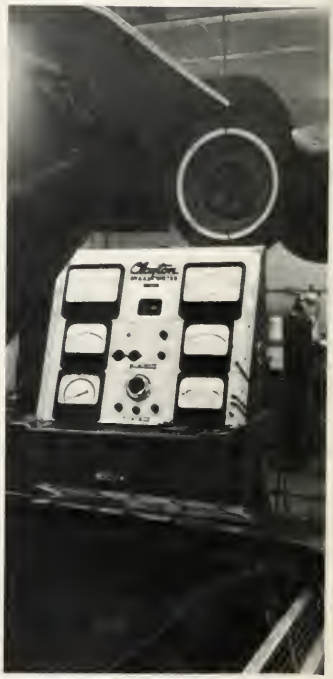
The Drafting and Design curriculum is set up to give the student at CCTI not only a good knowledge of the basic skills that he will use in the specific field of drafting, but also a broad general education. The technician in this field will be exposed to many different types of people and must be able to communicate with them all.

Electronic students must also have some courses from the Drafting curriculum to complete their course of study. This enables them not only to physically build electronical units, but to read and make schematic drawings.









The Practical Nursing curriculum is designed to fill the needs of hospitals and nursing homes throughout the nation. The course has been studied and evaluated by major medical agencies.

Automotive Mechanics students are given a basic knowledge that will enable them to enter their field and diagnose, inspect, repair and adjust automotive disorders.

Business opportunities are growing and with them the need for better than high school students with specialties. The Business Administration curriculum at CCTI is producing these students.

Governmental and industrial agencies are becoming more concerned with agricultural research and development. This is the goal for CCTI as far as their students in this course of study are concerned.

DEDICATION

We, the students of Central Carolina Technical Institute, do proudly and with deep gratitude dedicate this Cencaro of 1969 to ....

MR. F. HUBERT GARNER .... This name represents a man who is truly dedicated to this Institute. This man is gifted with firmness tempered with understanding and patience. His generosity of time, talent, and ability is shown to each and every one. He is more than an advisor—he is a close friend who is interested in the individual, his problems, his education, and his efforts to attain his goals. Through genuine concern and enthusiasm, this man has gained the respect of our student body. In short, he is a symbol of leadership and a helping hand. To him we render our thanks and appreciation.

A friend indeed.

Forever thinking.

Forever helping.

F. Hubert Garner

W. A. Martin
President

PRESIDENT Of C.C.T.I.

As the plans for Central Carolina Technical Institute were taken from the drawing board, Mr. Martin was appointed President. He undertook the challenging task of making the blueprint become a reality.

We are gathered here today . . . . . .

ADMINISTRATION

Here at CCTI the administrators have been and continue to be as much a part of student activity as a part of the administration. Too often the administration is thought of by the students as a vast network of hard-to-reach, busy, and aloof figures. Our administrators have a keen desire to respect the individual aptitudes, ambitions and personalities of the students and their actions have demonstrated their concern for students' welfare and happiness.

FACULTY

The people who make up the teaching faculty at Central Carolina Technical Institute are uniquely suited for their respective jobs. Talents and training possessed by these people include practical job training and experience as well as graduate degrees earned at major universities. Students at Central Carolina Technical are fortunate and proud of the instructors who care . . . . . .
